NUMBER 143

By JANE VOILES

If you have overlooked it, let us call your attention again to "Recollections of a Tule Sailor," by Capt. John Leale with interpolations by his daughter, Marion Leale. Perhaps you may have met Captain Leale when you journeyed on the ferry boats of blessed memory. The Captain came to California in 1864 from Guernsey when he was a boy of fourteen. His first job was that of cook on the schooner "Emma Adelia," which gathered its freight from the fruit farms on the Sacramento river.

In his somewhat terse and direct way of writing the Captain gives some memorable pictures of the Sacramento river in the 60s and the 70s. In his boyhood the fare on the Sacramento river boats was $5.00 and meals were $1.00. "Each boat," he writes, "had a large bell on the hurricane deck and on nearing San Francisco at about Alcatraz Island, the bell was rung until Broadway was near. This custom was in order to let the hack men and the hotel busmen learn of the boat's arrival—an important event as this was the chief means of transportation between Benicia, Collinsville, Rio Vista, Freeport and Sacramento."

The boat that held the first place in the Captain's heart was the old steamer Newark. You may remember its high paddle box and tall smoke stack. The "Bay City" was another favorite. This steamer, the Captain proudly states, had the distinction for a long time of being the only boat decorated during the Christmas season. Commuters loved the "Bay City" as there was always "a friendly, personal feeling aboard her," due, as the Captain's daughter says, to the efforts of officers and crew.

The report played by fog and tides in the life of a ferry boat Captain are related with genuine charm. The Captain's own memories of the earthquake and fire of 1906 will be of interest to the Californians who weathered that period. If you have fallen under the spell of the San Francisco waterfront and if you have a special liking for ships, read these "Recollections." Captain Leale tells of the "Golden Age" of the ship in which he sailed from Panama to San Francisco as a boy. He knew other boats beside the river and ferry boats and he knows how to convey their personality. One ship with which he had dealings was called the "Camino" and was in the service of the commission for Relief in Belgium. You will enjoy the sense of personal contact that the book conveys, not with the hail, hearty bluff type of captain beloved of the story books but with the gentleman and the host who made the safety of his passengers his first consideration and who never failed to give the commuters a little special thrill when he greeted them with his old-fashioned, courtly grace.

Now with the establishment of our county historical society, the place names of the county take on an added interest. Captain Leale writes of the ship "Camino." In a book on "Early American Glass" by Rhea Knittle we read where the likeness of Major Ringgold, the hero of Palo Alto, was depicted upon a glass cup-plate struck off in 1846, his name impressed on either side of the portrait. "We wish someone would set us right about this man. Was he the same Lieutenant Ringgold who came to Sutter's Fort in 1841 and made a survey of the Sacramento river going by launch and canoe? And was Ringgold in our county named for this same officer?"

Have you seen Constance Spry's "Garden Notebook?" Constance is the "veddy veddy" swanky British authority on flower arrangement who calls "glads" GLAD-ya-li, and who goes in for the less obvious kind of effects. The first 47 illustrations in her book left us positively goopish with admiration but we balked at the 48th and last. It was a table decoration consisting of fruit, flowers and vegetables in the arrangement of which Constance had let herself go with a fine, Bacchante-like abandon. In order to bring out "the subtle coloring" and "the dramatic quality" she used for tablecloth a Chinese silk shawl on Nankeen yellow. In the center you see a melon and a cauliflower amicably assembled beside a pineapple and a cabbage—

You should read how vehemently Constance Spry comes to the defense of the cabbage. We shouldn't

THOUSANDS TO SEE FINALS IN DERBY

Mother Lode Soapbox Champion To Be Named At Sonora On Sunday

The Mother Lode Soapbox Derby Championship will be established at Sonora on Sunday afternoon in races starting at one o'clock and reports from the Tuolumne County center indicate preparations have been made to accommodate a record crowd of spectators.

The Soapbox Derby is three years old in Sonora and at the local races on Sunday, six thousand spectators lined the course and with the added feature of a championship event drawing entries from Placerville, Roseville, Auburn and Jackson, it is expected that the attendance at Sunday's races will approximate 10,000 spectators.

Placerville has four entries in the Mother Lode Championship each of whom, according to Lloyd Cannon, co-sponsor of the local committee and a member of the Mother Lode Soapbox Derby Association, has an opportunity to qualify as an entry in the All-American Soapbox Derby at Akron, Ohio, on August 11th.

El Dorado County Soapbox Derby Champion James Franklin, with Billy Owens, runner-up, are both entered in the Mother Lode Soapbox Derby and in addition, Carl Lewis and Philip Morton are entered.

Indicative of the civic interest being shown in the event by Sonora organizations, Arthur Mart, secretary of Placerville Lions on Friday received an invitation for the club from the Sonora Lions, inviting the Placerville Lions to attend the derby.

"The races start at one o'clock," the message said. "This promises to be one of the most thrilling events ever held in the Mother Lode. We will do everything possible to make this event one that you will enjoy and to make your visit a happy one."

'28 Licenses Called In

All "Good Until Revoked" Cards Will Be Cancelled Early In '41, Warning

SACRAMENTO — The last group of "good until revoked" licenses—those issued in 1929—definitely will be cancelled, probably early in 1941, James M. Carter, newly appointed director of motor vehicles, announced today.

"Cancellation of the 1927 good until revoked licenses has demonstrated so clearly the necessity for this step," Carter said, "that we have decided to call in the 1929 licenses as soon as possible. When these are cancelled there will be a tremendous rush as more than 1,000,000 still are in existence. They may be renewed at any office of the department, and holders are advised to renew them now."

All 1927 "good until revoked" licenses expired on July 1, and the 1928's have been cancelled as of August 1, he pointed out.

NEIGHBOR'S HELP SAVES HOME FROM LOSS IN FLAMES

The state Division of Forestry fire crews were called Thursday evening to the property of Vernon Cox, north of the high school, where fire threatened a house owned by Mr. Cox in which George Vivian and F. E. McCann reside.

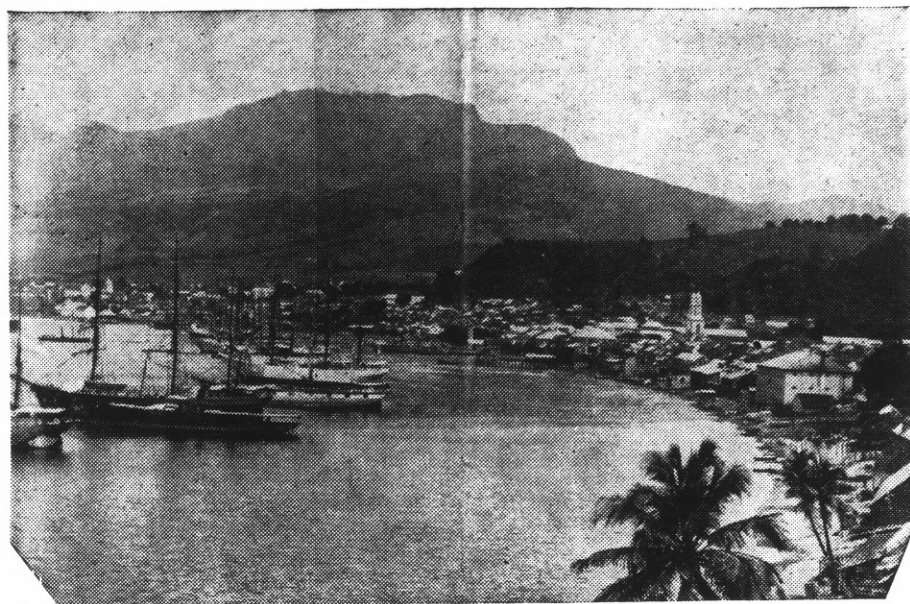

The fire originated from a faulty flue and burned around the flue and on the roof around the chimney and the probable destruction of the home was averted by Elmer Fausel, a neighbor, who held the flames in check with water from a garden hose until the fire crews arrived.

As a result of Fausel's assistance, spread of the flames was retarded so that the fire was quickly checked and extinguished by the state crews, who responded to the alarm from the station at Mt. Danaher with two trucks.

Harold Coons, of the forest service staff, is entertaining his mother and father, from Iowa, and showing them scenic and historic points of interest in and about the county.

HITLER INVITES BRITAIN TO "AVERT DESTRUCTION"

French Island Reported Blockaded by British

In this harbor on the French island of Martinique, French sources state the French airplane carrier Bearn was blockaded by British cruisers. British action was reported taken to prevent a shipment of American-made warplanes from falling into the hands of the Nazis. Martinique is but 1,160 miles from the Panama Canal.

WALLACE NEVER GOT TO SPEAK

New Deal Convention "Stage Managed," Say Come Conservatives

CHICAGO, (U)—Franklin Delano Roosevelt today ordered the new deal-democratic party into an immediate offensive against Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential candidate. He had accepted a tradition-shattering third term nomination which, he said, he had hoped earnestly to avoid.

Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, an Iowa new dealer, was nominated for vice president by Mr. Roosevelt's order. That was the second demonstration of Mr. Roosevelt's power over the Democratic National Convention which convened here at noon Monday and adjourned sine die at 2:05 a. m. EDT. today.

Whether this convention "drafted" Mr. Roosevelt or was "stage-managed" into nominating him is a matter of some dispute. There are conservatives here who believe the latter.

"Had this been a free and open convention . . ." said Senator Scott Lucas, D. Ill., last night in asking that his name be withdrawn from the list of vice presidential contestants. There were others who felt that way about it, too.

The opposition had the boos but not the votes to stop Wallace. Time after time his nominator and those who seconded his nomination or shouted a defiant determination to vote for Mr. Roosevelt's man, were washed with a flood of derision some of which came from the floor where the votes are. Wallace sat through it all clutching the speech of acceptance which never was delivered. Mr. Roosevelt needed the minutes Wallace would have required, so the number two man of the third new deal still has his speech to deliver.

Shingle Springs Lady Died On Friday

Mrs. Fannie B. Dickey, 52, wife of Elvery Dickey, of near Shingle Springs, died early Friday at a Placerville hospital to which she had been admitted as a patient on Thursday.

Mrs. Dickey was a native of Missouri, resident in California thirty years and in El Dorado County six years. She is survived by her husband.

Memory Chapel reports that last rites are planned tentatively to be held at 2:30 o'clock Sunday from the chapel. Rev. J. W. Dunlop officiating. Interment will be at El Dorado.

H. E. Dillinger was at San Francisco on business Friday.

Farley To Quit On August 17th

CHICAGO, (U)—James A. Farley reportedly was reelected chairman of the democratic national committee by acclamation today.

Farley was said to have agreed to serve only until August 17 because his own personal financial position requires him to quit politics.

This information came from a member of the national committee, who would not be quoted directly because the full committee still was meeting in executive session.

Father, 6 Tots, Die In Crash

Speeding Grape Truck Skids 285 Feet, Smashes Into Family On Outing

VAN NUYS (U)—A father and six children were killed today in a head-on collision of two trucks on San Fernando road north of here, and the mother and another child were seriously injured.

Police identified the father as Clarence Yount of Los Angeles. His and the other bodies were burned almost beyond recognition when their light truck caught fire. Mrs. Gladys Yount, his wife and Johnnie, two years old, were taken to hospitals.

The children were identified as Betty, 12; Jacqueline, 10; Donald, 9; Robert, 8; Marie, 6, and Shirley May, 5. Police said some of them probably were burned to death while pinned beneath the wreckage of the truck.

The accident occurred just after the family had left home on a holiday trip to June Lake, Calif. Their truck, a pickup, was going north when it collided with a heavy grape truck driven by James White, 40, police said.

White suffered a skull fracture, hospital attendants said.

Police said White told them he lost control of his heavy truck on a hill and was traveling at high speed when he crashed into the Yount truck. Investigators said the grape truck skidded 285 feet before the crash.

ELKS VOTE TO MEET IN PHILADELPHIA NEXT YEAR

HOUSTON, Tex., (U)—The Elks national convention ended after a final session which was addressed by Rep. Martin Dies, D. Texas, chairman of the house committee investigating un-American activities.

Winners in convention competition were: Parade floats, Massachusetts; glee clubs, Santa Ana, Calif.; ritualistic work, Inglewood, Calif.

Philadelphia was awarded the '41 convention.

WILLKIE HAS NO COMMENT

Republican Nominee Finds Roosevelt Radio Address "Very, Very Interesting"

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., (U)—Wendell L. Willkie, the Republican presidential nominee, had "no comment" today on the acceptance speech of his Democratic opponent, President Roosevelt.

He heard the President's speech last night in his characteristic pose—lying across a couch and surrounded by friends and newspaper reporters.

He chuckled occasionally at the President's phrases but abstained from interpolated comments. As the President concluded his address, the Republican nominee said:

"Very, very interesting."

It was his only remark on Mr. Roosevelt's speech. He declined also to comment on the selection of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace of Iowa as Mr. Roosevelt's vice-presidential running mate.

He had predicted some time ago that Mr. Roosevelt would accept renomination for a third term. He had expressed a desire to run against the President rather than some other Democratic candidate so that the question of perpetuation of the new deal would be a clean-cut one. He seemed to feel last night that his previous comments on those matters sufficed and nothing more need be said.

"You Must Be God" Says Rescued Boy

PATERSON, N. J., (U)—The first words of Emil Degyn, 13, when he felt powerful arms encircle his waist and save him from certain death, were: "You must be God."

The boy slipped off the edge of Garrett Mountain yesterday and slid down the side of a 300 foot drop. His fingertips grasped a ledge 150 feet from the bottom.

He dug in his toes and hung on until his fingertips bled, Radio Patrolman William Ludwig, who was lowered from the top of the plateau by two other policemen, snatched the boy from his perch.

WAR OF NERVES NEAR CLIMAX

Italian Paper Warns Russia Aid To Britain Would Be Fatal Error

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

Adolf Hitler prepared today for the climatic showdown with Great Britain.

The Germans and Italians had whipped their nerves and terror of a high peak of threats against the British Isles. For every threat, they received a dogged cry of defiance from London.

British defense preparations were moving forward with greatest rapidity. Dispatches from London reported high determination and confidence that the threatened offensive could be repulsed and perhaps turned into disaster.

Britain was prepared to exploit any indirect gesture the Nazi fuhrer may make toward ending the war, even on his own terms, as a sign of uncertainty in Berlin and Rome.

In London, it was said that the axis powers had threatened to strike through the Balkans to attack the British Empire in the near East—as they struck through the low countries to France. It was also reported that efforts were being made to use the geographic position of Spain for an attack on the Great British stronghold of Gibraltar—bombed yesterday by Italian planes in what Rome called a successful raid at the mouth of the Mediterranean.

The authoritative Fascist party newspaper Regime Fascista attracted wide attention by a warning to Soviet Russia—which yesterday reported that it was building a navy as big as any in the world—that it would be fatal to attempt to "double cross" the axis powers by giving aid to Britain.

The British, according to the newspapers, still hope to get Russia into conflict with Germany and Italy, but such a move would be settled with "the same swiftness and strength" as Poland and France were destroyed.

DRIVING LICENSE SUSPENDED FOLLOWING WRECK NEAR SPORTSMAN'S HALL

The motor vehicle license of Charles Corva Miers, 17, of Placerville, Route 4, Box 4-A, was suspended for six months by Justice of the Peace T. F. Lewis Friday morning when Miers pleaded guilty to a charge of operating a faulty equipped car.

The charge was brought by Officer Charles Patchen, of the highway patrol, following a wreck on Thursday evening near Sportsman's Hall in which Miers' car crashed into a machine driven by Mello Canapo, of Camino. Both cars were westbound on the highway and the officer reported that the collision resulted from Miers attempting to pass on the right while overtaking Canapo, who was making a right turn off the highway.

Mona West, of Placerville, Route 4, Box 4, who was riding with Miers, suffered cuts and bruises, as did Miers.

"APPEAL" MADE IN TALK TO REICHSTAG

Blitzkrieg Promised By Nazi Leader If Offer Is Rejected

By FREDERICK C. OESCHNER
United Press Staff Correspondent

BERLIN, (U)—Adolf Hitler today addressed an "appeal to reason" to Great Britain to avert "destruction of a great world empire" but he made it clear that rejection would mean an attack with all of the forces at the command of the axis powers.

"In this hour and before this body," the Nazi fuhrer told the German Reichstag in the presence of Italian foreign minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano, "I feel myself obliged to make one more appeal to reason to England."

"I do this not as a victory, but for the triumph of common sense." Without delivering any ultimatum, Hitler said that it had never been his desire or his aim to destroy the British Empire.

The fuhrer said that his two cardinal aims in foreign policy had been friendship with Britain and with Italy.

"Despite my sincere efforts it has not been possible," he said, "to achieve the friendship with England which I believed would have been blessed by both."

Hitler made it clear that rejection of his appeal to "reason" would result in a final attack upon Great Britain with every resource that Germany could throw into the battle.

County Jobless Paid $15,094

June Payment Covered 1,012 Checks; Declined $4,500 From May Total

Unemployment insurance payments to eligible California Workers were $404,664 lower in June than in the previous month, according to announcement made today by Ford Park, manager of the Placerville office, State Department of Employment.

The sharp decrease in unemployment insurance payments reflected the general improvement of employment opportunities throughout the state, Park said.

In El Dorado County, unemployed workers received 1012 checks during June amounting to $15,094 as compared with the 1291 checks written in May totaling $19,555.

The 418,892 checks written in June of this year for an aggregate insurance distribution of $5,682,481 represented an increase of $1,904,682 over the June, 1939 figure of 374,288 checks which totaled $3,777,799.

AL HOSTAK MEETS TONY ZALE IN FIFTEEN-ROUND BOUT AT SEATTLE TONIGHT

SEATTLE, (U)—Two middle-weight sluggers of the old school match blows tonight in Seattle Civic Stadium for the National Boxing Association crown and whatever gold or glory in 46 states such an honor will entail.

Al Hostak of Seattle, who won, lost and regained the title within a year, defends it against Tony Zale of Chicago in a 15-round scrap. Zale won a 10-round non-title decision in Chicago six months ago after the Seattle Slav broke a bone in his potent left fist—the second such mishap in Hostak's career.

Neither fighter lays claim to an overdose of ring science. Broadly speaking, they are a throwback to the old, hard-bitten type of ring brawler who preferred to dish it out. For this reason, it was figured the battle would end in a knockout—and Hostak held a 10-6 wagering edge in these estimates.

Marcia Howards meets and falls in love with Dr. Larry Norton, on her way to Stipstown where her father has bought a house — the forbidding looking old Stips estate. The Howards no sooner move in, than a series of strange happenings occur. Larry blames Sidney Allstone, a powerful man in town, for the trouble. For some reason, Allstone does not want anyone to tamper with the house. Then an Italian, Gigi, asks Howards for a job. Mysteriously, he suggests that Howards will have need of someone he can trust. The same night, a stranger, Dr. Ashton Brown, who claims to be the only son of Ellen Ashton Brown, grand-daughter of old Colonel Stips, calls on Larry telling him that he is trying to solve a mystery surrounding the Stips house. He persuades Larry to let him come to his house, disguised as an old friend, Dr. Peter Macbride. A few days later, Gigi confesses that he knew Ellen Brown, and that he does not believe that she is dead, though a Dr. Bliz, who once ran a nerve cure at the house, signed her death certificate. Bliz, he says, is Allstone. The answer to the mystery lies in the house.

CHAPTER XXI

FEAR — the house was wrapped in a cloak of it. They all felt it. When Howards came home he found Marcia and the two young doctors still in the study, restless, nervously smoking and almost afraid to voice their thoughts.

Larry told Howards the story in quick, concise phrases. Howards took it calmly. Carefully he filled and lighted his pipe before speaking. Then he looked at the three young people.

"We knew there was danger," he said quietly. "It is better that we know this. If anything, it helps us to protect ourselves in the right direction."

"Then you believe Gigi's story?" Larry broke in eagerly. "You believe now that I was right about Allstone?"

Howards smiled. "I believe in keeping a watch on him. The more I see of Gigi, the more confidence I feel in him, but I think he is holding something back. Probably he has good reasons for doing so. Meanwhile, I think he is right. If Allstone is our enemy, we must frighten him into striking. At present, it seems to me that our best course is to try to live our normal lives and not lose control of our nerves. That would be playing into his hands."

"It sounds very easy as you put it, sir," Larry broke in, "but how are we going to force Allstone to action without doing anything out of the ordinary?"

"By letting him think we are on to something," Howards answered calmly.

"If only we had a plan of some sort," Macbride muttered. "I am beginning to have a plan," Howards said quietly.

"What?" The other three spoke at once.

"I am going to return Mr. Allstone's dinner invitation tomorrow night. I propose to try a little bluff. No, no—" Howards put up his hands in protest. "I shan't tell you about it yet. Now, gentlemen, if you care to stay to dinner—"

IT WAS LATE when Larry and Macbride left. Marcia decided it was a propitious moment to speak to her father about the most important matter in her mind.

"You like Larry, don't you?" she began, trying to sound casual.

"Hum—yes," her father answered complacently.

Marcia walked over to her father, putting an arm around his shoulder.

"Then you wouldn't mind so much, dear," she said softly. "If I told you that we love each other?"

Howards was silent, blowing smoke rings to the ceiling.

"You've only known the young man a few days," he said finally.

"Right from the beginning we—" But yesterday he— We spoke about it. We want to get married very soon."

Howards put down his cigar. "Don't misunderstand me, Marcia," he said quietly, "and don't be angry, but you must understand that I can't agree to this sudden—"

"It may seem sudden to you," she protested hotly.

"Just a moment, dear. I was going to say that I can't agree to anything definite between you and Larry until we have cleared up this mystery."

Marcia backed away from him and stood, very slim and straight looking down at him.

"Father," she said coldly, "you don't believe that Larry—"

Howards came over to her, patting her shoulder awkwardly.

"I don't think anything of the kind, my dear. Under any circumstances, I should ask you to wait a little longer. You must give your old dad a chance to get used to the idea. Now to bed, young lady; tomorrow night may be quite strenuous."

TOMORROW night — Marcia was not thinking of mysteries and house-warnings when she went to bed. She was thinking of Larry, of his thick crisp hair and the humorous light in his eyes when he smiled. When she fell asleep she dreamt that he was there, taking care of her, and she wasn't afraid.

The following day was bright and cold. When evening came the sky was dark and clear, studded with stars, and a half moon made silver light on the window panes.

Allstone, Larry and Macbride were invited for dinner, and all three agreed to come. Marcia hadn't seen Larry all day, but just before dinner a messenger came with a corsage of gardenias from him.

Marcia took a long time dressing, and both Larry and Macbride had arrived when she came down the stairs, the white flowers pinned to the shoulder of a dark blue velvet dress.

Larry drew in his breath sharply when she entered the living room. Then he was on his feet, his eyes adoring her, saying all the things he could not voice.

Macbride bowed over her hand. "I feel," he said lightly, "as though I should kneel at your feet."

Marcia blushed, but her eyes were on Larry. Then she remembered herself and began to chat gaily. Howards looked at his watch.

"This time," he said, "Mr. Allstone is late."

HE HAD hardly spoken, however, when the doorbell rang and a few seconds later Allstone appeared.

"So sorry," he apologized. "My car broke down and I had to phone for a taxi. I hope," turning to Macbride, "that you won't mind taking me home when you go?"

Macbride bowed stiffly. "With pleasure."

"Many thanks," Allstone turned to Marcia. "You are very beautiful tonight," he said, and there was no mistaking the sincerity in his voice. "Beauty," he added in a murmur, as though thinking aloud—"here today and gone tomorrow."

In the dead silence that followed, Marcia felt chilled. Had there been something ominous in Allstone's voice?

Job's Repentance and Restoration

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON 7-21

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL
(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 21 is Job 42:1-13, the Golden Text being Job 42:10, "And Jehovah turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends.")

had spent so much time arguing with him that his sins must have brought his troubles upon him, and the Lord said to them—Eli-phaz, the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite and Zophar the Naamathite: "My wrath is kindled against thee; for ye have not spoken of me the thing that is right, as my servant Job hath."

Then He told them they must take seven bullocks and seven rams, and go to Job and offer up a burnt-offering, and Job would pray for them.

"And the Lord turned the captivity of Job, when he prayed for his friends; also the Lord gave Job twice as much as he had before."

Isn't it peculiar how friends and relatives often disappear when one is in trouble—especially when one has lost his property? Many are faithful and true, thank God, but it is surprising how many appear only when one is again prosperous. Thus it was with Job. When he was again wealthy his brothers and sisters and all his acquaintances came to him, and they accepted his hospitality and bemoaned and comforted him; and every man also gave him a piece of money and every one an earring of gold.

"So the Lord blessed Job at last and he had more than he had in the beginning, as many again of sheep, camels, oxen and she asses. Seven more sons and three daughters who were very beautiful, were born to him. Job lived to be an hundred and forty years old, and saw his sons and his sons' sons, even four generations.

"So Job died, being old, and full of days."

This is the end of the dramatic story of Job, who was sadly afflicted, but lived to be happy and grow old with his family. Faith in God and His goodness, acknowledgement and repentance of his sins, and the fact that he stood Satan's test, brought him through his troubles. Would you and I have the necessary faith and courage to face such trials and come out victorious? We must live daily so as to strengthen our faith and courage.

KELSEY NOTES

"To bear, to nurse, to rear," seems to watch and then to lose — seems especially fitting to Dora Frances Womack, who was born to Jesse and Edna Womack at San Diego, July 12, 1929, and passed to rest at Mercy Hospital, Sacramento, on July 3, 1940, being eleven years of age. An unusually bright, ambitious child, she held the promise of a beautiful and useful womanhood to her adoring parents. Dora was a favorite with her schoolmates, and because of her exceptional kindness and courtesy to elderly people she was much beloved by all in our district. Taken suddenly ill at a Sunday School camp east of Georgetown after only two days' stay, she was rushed to Placerville Sanatorium and then to Mercy Hospital where all that modern medical science could do proved futile against a streptococcus infection that filled her blood stream and localized in her hip. She survived only six days, her fever remaining 107 most of the time, relapsing into a coma Friday afternoon. Both parents were constantly at her bedside, besides several Kelsey friends who were present at times. She was laid to rest from the little chapel at Kelsey where she was an active member of the Sunday school. The large number of friends present attested the respect to both the Womacks and love for their daughter. Banks of floral pieces filled the choir and altar platform. The pallbearers were her school mates: Ray Miller, Billy Timm, Elwood Sturtevant, Billie Holt, Stanley Wilkinson and George Raley of Garden Valley. The pupils of the Kelsey school and some of Garden Valley school escorted the hearse to the cemetery. Several of her former teachers were present from a great distance. Rev. Fred Kinzie delivered a most fitting sermon. A. J. Orelli and Mrs. Orelli of Memory Chapel had charge of the arrangements. Many relatives from Oakland and Nevada came to be with the family in their hours of trial — mother of Jesse Womack came up from Oakland, two brothers from Nevada, and many other more distant relatives. The parents have the deep sympathy of their many friends, not only in Kelsey district where they have won the esteem of all, but also of Georgetown, Diamond Springs, Placerville and Garden Valley where they have lived and many of whom were present at the funeral.

THURMAN SUPPORTED BILL ALLOWING RANCHERS RIGHT TO SLAUGHTER OWN CALVES

Local Assemblyman Supported Farm Bureau Program As Well As Other Farm Legislation Of Interest To Sixth Assembly District

Assemblyman Allen G. Thurman, representing El Dorado County in the state assembly, in a statement issued this week to the press of the district says that he is on record favoring legislation which will permit ranchers and people engaged in the dairy business or the raising of cattle to be permitted to slaughter and to sell calves produced by them.

His statement follows: "I voted for and supported on the floor of the assembly the only bill which passed the lower house at the 1939 session of the legislature which would have permitted ranchers and people engaged in the dairy business and cattle raising to slaughter and sell calves produced by them."

"This bill, A. B. 639 by Assemblyman Schwallish, received my full support. It was passed by the assembly on May 25th, 1939, by a vote of 41 to 29. I am on record on page 2430 of the Assembly Daily Journal as voting in favor of this bill."

"Following its passage a reconsideration was granted which I opposed with a 'no' vote on May 29th, my vote being recorded on page 2557 of the Daily Journal."

"The bill was again passed on May 30th by a vote of 42 to 27 and my vote in favor of the bill will be found recorded on page 2574 of the Assembly Daily Journal for that date."

"One of my campaign promises in 1938 was that if elected I would support such legislation. This I did to the fullest extent and my support is a matter of record."

"The bill referred to, which passed the assembly twice, was later unfortunately killed in a senate committee."

"I can assure all cattle men, ranchers and dairymen that if I am re-elected to the office I now hold, I shall introduce at the next session of the legislature a bill similar to the one which I supported at the last session."

"This bill, which I have gone into some length to discuss had the support of the Farm Bureaus of my district and I wish to state at this time that I supported the Farm Bureau's legislative program practically 100 per cent in the last regular session in addition to supporting other farm legislation of particular interest to the people of my district."

"Under date of September 6, 1939, Ray B. Wiser, president of the California Farm Bureau Federation, and Von T. Ellsworth, legislative representative of the organization, wrote me, in part, as follows:

"Dear Mr. Thurman: 'I want to express my appreciation for the many favors you have shown me and the people I represent, and to commend you for the service which you have rendered our state.'

"In behalf of the California Farm Bureau Federation I thank you for the support you have given us."

"Again under date of May 29, 1940, Mr. Von T. Ellsworth wrote the following:

"Mr. Thurman: 'I commend you particularly for the prominent part which you played as a member of the so-called 'economy bloc'. The action taken will not only save millions of dollars for the taxpayers, but will aid materially in maintaining the self-respect of those who are economically depressed.'"

9th District Voters Should Select Their Own Senator

Now that the Campaign for the State Senator for the 9th Senatorial District is well under way, many attempts to influence the voters will be exerted by cliques and interests from outside the District and already these efforts are being manifested within its boundaries. One of my opponents for the office of State Senator admittedly has the endorsement and backing of our Governor; for another of my opponents our Lieutenant Governor, is attempting to make "Politicks Tick," while still another one of my opponents has the backing of certain groups, interests and cliques, once connected with a former State Administration. Recently some of those parties closely connected with that former Administration visited this District in an endeavor to "line up the vote" in favor of that candidate.

It is my sincere belief that the voters of the 9th District, or of any District, should be permitted to select the person who is to represent them in the State Legislature, free from any influence by Administrations, past or present, and free from influence from outside territory, for your Senator is to be elected to serve the 9th Senatorial District and not the Senatorial District in which either San Francisco, Sacramento, or Los Angeles, is located. Those territories are represented by their own Legislators, but not content with that representation it is sought to obtain further advantage in the Legislature by attempting to influence the voters of the 9th District to elect a man of their choice rather than of the choice of the people in the District. Neither is it right nor fair that the Administration or the enemies of the Administration should be able to select your Senator, for your Senator should go to the Senate with a free and open mind and without any political ties or obligations. He should be your representative and not the representative of some outside group or faction nor should he go to the Senate for the purpose of strengthening and building up a "political aristocracy" interested only in advancing the cause of the organization.

As a candidate for the office of State Senator I have neither obtained nor sought the aid, financial or otherwise, of outside influences and I seek to go to the Senate as your representative alone, as "an independent candidate, without political ties or obligations." I have made no promises and intend to make no promises. I have no axe to grind and, if elected, my only interest will be the interest of the State and of the 9th District. I would not care to serve as Senator under any conditions other than those which would make me a free and independent Legislator, being obligated only to the voters of the District to render an honest and faithful service.

For these reasons I urge the voters of this District, during the coming campaign to disregard outside influences and to look with suspicion on any candidates supported by strong factions and organizations whose headquarters and interests are located outside the 9th Senatorial District and in selecting a Senator to make the selection one of their choice and one who will truly be a representative of this District.

Respectfully,
THOMAS MAUL,
 Candidate for State Senator,
 9th District.

"LOVE, EET EES WONDERFUL!" beams Cesar Romero, the Cisco Kid of "Viva Cisco Kid," the 20th Century-Fox film which brings the latest and most thrilling adventures of the lovable O. Henry outlaw to the Empire Theatre for Friday and Saturday. The Senorita in this thrill-packed film is the lovely Jean Rogers.

"Typhoon," Opening Sunday. Solves Color Film Problem

The three greatest Technicolor problems—fire, flesh and storm—are overcome and herded under one banner in "Typhoon," with Dorothy Lamour, Robert Preston and Lynne Overman, which is the feature opening Sunday at the Empire theatre.

A whole island had to be made in miniature, then burned with strontium and other chemicals for precise film tone in long-shot scenes of the fire. For closeups, more than an acre of "jungle" was built and burned. Special neon lights were needed for the critical shadings of a storm sky.

As for flesh—Dorothy wears mostly that, having traded in her famous sarong for its little sister, a lava lava. Robert Preston, playing opposite her, wears a masculine equivalent.

All the lush greens and brilliant reds of the South Sea jungle, and all the vibrant glamour of Dorothy Lamour come to life in "Typhoon." Even the terror of the spectacular hurricane sequence has been heightened by the brooding gloom that rushes in with it. Your eyes will be dazzled by the varied hues.

The magical setting has been prepared for the tempestuous romance of sarong-wrapped Dorothy, a castaway on an uninhabited isle far from the usual shipping routes in The Dutch East Indies, and the derelict, dishonorably discharged Annapolis man who lands in her paradise.

Sports Parade

By HENRY McLEMORE

NEW YORK (UP)—If my ears were two inches longer, or if I had a single fetlock to my name, I would go into the strictest sort of training today to compete for the $50,000 New York Handicap which will be run at Belmont on October 5.

The New York Handicap is the latest idea to blossom in the mental garden of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, a young man of Manhattan who is a dead clinch to retain his title of "America's foremost young sportsman" as long as his money holds out.

The New York Handicap may seem just like another new horse race to you, what with its conditions that call for three-year-olds and upwards, weight on a basis of handicaps, all to start from a gate, and all to run in the same direction, and all to be ridden by jockeys. But here is the catch about the New York Handicap—and when I say catch I mean catch. It is to be run over a piece of ground that measures two and a quarter miles. To give you a true picture of just exactly how long two and a quarter miles is, let me say that it is roughly as far as Clark Gable's salary is from mine, as far as Clark Gable's face is from mine, and as far as Clark Gable's ears are from his head.

I am not quite sure that there are enough horses in the country who can run two and a quarter miles to make up a field for the New York Handicap. Horses, that is, capable of doing the distance in a time that would make it possible to start and finish the race on the same day. American race horses have specialized in sprints and mile runs for so long that they probably would call on John L. Lewis or William Green for help if asked to go much farther without time and a half for overtime. The horse, to be quite honest about the matter, has forgotten that he used to be bred for endurance instead of speed, and that once upon a time his value was reckoned on how far and how fast he could go, instead of just how fast.

There are a few scattered long-distance races held in this country, principally at Agua Caliente. But

Robert Preston is the lucky sailor. He and Lynn Overman are being pursued by a Polynesian chief who wants their blood, and they are forced to abandon their pearl-hunting submarine, for lack of oil, on Dorothy's lonely shore.

Dorothy, who lives high in a banyan tree in a sort of jungle penthouse, with a trained chimpanzee, is delighted to have a young sailor arrive.

A tremendous climax thunderclaps the adventurous romance, when the chief fires the little island to cremate them all, and then the devastating fury of a tropical typhoon swoops on the island.

Done in Technicolor, there is no more awe-inspiring storm in all film history. Rain is blasted on the island by terrific winds. Undergrowth, land clumps, and whole palm trees are uprooted and thrown past in the tropic gloom by the fury of the gale.

The purses of the Caliente races are as cheap as the horses that run in them. Any Caliente horse that wins with a time under 15 minutes is given an extra portion of oats, has his mane and tail braided, and is treated to a double feature movie.

Now that sort of winning time isn't wanted in a rich race like the New York Handicap. To earn the $50,000 purse a nag should come close to the 2 and one-quarter miles mark of 3:48 three-fifths held by Mike Hall, and established some 13 years ago.

Just what Young Vanderbilt plans to do if no horses turn up for the race hasn't been announced. But I am the sort of fellow who wants to be ready when opportunity knocks. I promise you that the morning of Oct. 5 will find me trained to the minute, neighing softly, and wearing a coat made of the stuffing from my prized horse hair sofa.

With $50,000 staring me in the face I will show early foot, a steady pace for the first mile, a game bid at the mile and the half mark, a run at the leaders on the final turn, and tremendous courage in the stretch.

wonder if she hadn't been reading that naughty book of her compatriot Anthony Thorne and by the way it is making strides toward the head of the best seller lists in our own country. When the cabbage is first introduced in the book "Cabbage Holiday," the heroine, Madame Fauquet thinks of it as "course, fibrous, tough and resilient, a vegetable without any sense of humor, and bottom in the social scale." While Miss Spry says: "If someone showed you a cabbage for the first time and told you it was a tropical plant and difficult to grow... you would believe him, for it has all the qualities—the modeling, the texture, the grandeur—of many fine tropical plants."

NEW HANDICAPPING PLAN PROVIDES THRILLS IN CYCLE RACES

SACRAMENTO—Congestion at the turns on the Sacramento Stadium motorcycle racing track, due to the new system of handicapping top riders at 200 yards, gave the spectators last week one of the most exciting motorbike meets ever held in the capital city oval.

This week, Promoter Frank J. Murray will again handicap the top scratch riders a distance of 200 yards behind the starting line. This innovation gives the slower riders a winning chance and makes the top notch racers show their real class to overcome the large handicap and place in the top money. The most thrilling feature of the 200 yard handicap races is that all of the riders are usually neck-to-neck at the turns.

THICKER PEAR PEELING FOR CANNING FRUIT APPROVED FOR BARTLETT'S

SACRAMENTO—A minor modification in the grade provision for canning Bartlett Pears under the proration program for Pear Production Zone No. 1, embracing all of the state, was announced by the Bureau of Markets of the State Department of Agriculture.

The Agricultural Prorate Advisory Commission, at the request of the Pear Program Committee, has approved an increase for inspection purposes in the thickness in the peeling of canning pears from one-sixteenth of an inch to one-eighth of an inch.

The thickness of peeling is defined in the Pear Proration Program to enable inspectors to determine whether or not lots of Bartlett's are suitable for canning in the event that certain pears have surface blemishes.

The Pear Program Committee stated that the modification was necessary in order to allow growers to sell a greater quantity of pears for canning purposes.
